Historic, Archive Document

Do not assume content reflects current scientific knowledge, policies, or practices

March 10, 1945

May We Point Out,—that

For one reason or another, with which you are entirely familiar, the growing and the shipping of plants and bulbs are filled with extraordinary war-time difficulties. We are faced with scarcities of some of the plants and bulbs you might like to have in your garden.

If you are planning to order anything else from our Flowerfield catalog for your spring planting of 1945, which we mailed to you recently, please send us your order soon, to enable us to provide you with what you would like and ship it to you at the proper time.

flowerfield

Flowerfield, Long Island, New York